The Faculty of Education is committed to fostering links with a range of partners including schools, colleges, private education and training providers, private sector employers and community groups. We are always delighted to hear from anyone interested in engaging with our work.

Do you mean me?

Yes! The faculty works with a wide range of individuals and groups to support their educational needs. We welcome enquires from individuals and from organisations within the public, private or voluntary / community sectors.

We look forward to hearing from you if you have

- students or staff who would like to visit the University
- ideas for bespoke training, events or activities
- suggestions of other ways the faculty might support you

What are the benefits?

We offer high quality activities; access to experts in their fields and support from proactive and enthusiastic staff.

What about training and development?

In these challenging times, we recognise the need to provide a range of high-quality, flexible training routes. We ensure that our tuition fees are competitive and that our courses meet identified needs. We offer the opportunity to re-train, to up-skill and to enhance job prospects and can deliver training and development sessions at level 4 and above. Perhaps you need to accredit your work-based learning or maybe your staff would like training in the use of applied technology (for example whiteboards). Why not talk to us about the particular needs of your organisation?

What can I request?

We can

- support partnership working, for example in the production of bids or the progression of initiatives
- provide bespoke training and education to meet your needs
- offer organisational and staff development sessions
- arrange accreditation of work-based learning

- provide evaluation and research expertise
- organise, facilitate or participate in events on campus or off campus
- provide expertise on working groups, boards or committees
- offer opportunities for inter-disciplinary work and networking

About us

Our students and programmes

We have more than 6,000 students studying with us, hosted by one of our three departments

- the Centre for Educational Studies on the Hull campus
- the Centre for Lifelong Learning on the Hull campus, and
- the Scarborough School of Education on the Scarborough campus

In order to meet the needs of such a large and diverse body of students, we offer a range of part-time and full-time programmes of study and professional development. For more details, visit our website at www.hull.ac.uk/education.

Our research

Our staff are research-active and in the last Research Assessment Exercise over 80% of our research outputs were judged to be of international standard or above.

Our relationships and partnerships

We have fostered many strong working relationships. The Centre for Educational Studies and the Scarborough School of Education each coordinate substantial school partnerships with over 600 primary and secondary schools and colleges participating in Teesside, North Yorkshire, the East Riding of Yorkshire, Hull and North and North East Lincolnshire.

The Centre for Lifelong Learning works in partnership with many organisations in the region to offer short courses to meet the needs of the individual and the workplace. Partners include the Hull and East Yorkshire Participatory Network; The Rotherham, Doncaster and South Humber Mental Trust; and a number of Children's Centres and Women's Centres.
